

Galerie

Transition Your Home Design to Fall with These Jewel-Toned Furnishings and Decor

Richly hued linens, tableware, and more make for an elegant seasonal color scheme that conjures rubies, sapphires, and emeralds

BY JILL SIERACKI

SEPTEMBER 15, 2020

Whereas summer meant bright white linens and home accents in beachy shades of Mediterranean blue, sandy rattan, or vibrant lemon yellow, autumn is the time to transition your decor into deeper, more saturated hues, particularly in the rich jewel tones popular in fall fashions. Small swaps—like stowing away those turquoise goblets in lieu of a more smoky wine glass or replacing ecru throw pillows for ski-chalet-esque crimson soft goods—can easily transform your home for cooler weather. Or, consider bringing in some larger decorative pieces in rich colorways that look glorious all year long. Here, we gather a selection of jewel-toned items sure to add a regal touch to any interior.

Charles Zana's Julie sofa.

Vincent Darré's Conversation armchair.

PHOTO: COURTESY OF THE INVISIBLE COLLECTION

The Invisible Collection

Sculptural furniture makes an impact in a richly saturated upholstery. Architect Charles Zana's serpentine Julie sofa becomes a room's focal point in an earthy green Pierre Frey mohair, while bon vivant Vincent Darré's puzzle-piece-like Conversation armchair captures attention in a dynamic royal blue fabric.